

ALMOST BARE WITH ECZEMA ON HEAD

Started with Blistery Pimples. Itched so Badly and Hurt so Was Almost Crazy.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had eczema which started with little pimples along the edge of my hair and went all over my head. It itched so badly and hurt so that I was almost crazy. I was almost blind and I could not sleep, and had to walk the floor at night. My hair all fell out and I was almost bald. I was in the house for two weeks.

The trouble lasted about eight weeks and I had many treatments, but they did not do me any good. Then I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, and in a few days I saw the hair coming. Now I am entirely healed and have no marks of any kind." (Signed) A. Freniere, Plainville, Conn., July 29, 1915.

Westerly Hears of Mariner's Death

Capt Joseph Baxter, of Cape Cod, Enters Last Port—Court Gives Dr. Senior Another Chance—Funeral of Charles B. Coon—Pearl Worth $200 Found in Round Clam.

Word was received in Westerly Friday of the death of Captain Joseph Baxter, of West Dennis, Mass., one of the oldest retired sea captains on Cape Cod, having followed the sea from boyhood. Captain Baxter was a friend of Horace P. Dodge of Westerly, the acquaintance being formed in a peculiar way, brief but lasting. April 15, 1885, Mr. Dodge in passing along Atlantic avenue in Boston, saw a barkentine evidently getting ready to go to sea. He went to the Commercial wharf and had a short talk with the captain. When word came to let go the line forward, Mr. Dodge threw off the line and the Ralph M. Hayward was stated on her long voyage for Port Adelaide, South Australia, with a cargo of railroad cars, valued at over $1,000,000, sent out by Kilder Peabody, and at that time the most valuable cargo ever shipped from Boston to Australia.

Mr. Dodge, a close student of matters maritime, and kept track of Captain Baxter, and his vessels, until the captain lost his vessel, the glimmer of the sun on the sea and retired, to spend the balance of his life at his home in West Dennis, Mass. For nearly thirty years Captain Baxter and Mr. Dodge have been in close touch with each other. Mr. Dodge has received more than a hundred letters from the captain and also souvenirs from foreign ports that will be preserved with pleasant remembrances of the giver. The brigantine Ralph M. Hayward is today anchored between Vineyard Haven and New York, from a port in Nova Scotia.

"Your honor, I wish to withdraw my plea of not guilty and to plead nolo," proclaimed Dr. Percy A. Senior, in the Third district court when his continuing case on the charge of being a common drunkard was reached. The doctor started in to flay the police and press for alleged persecution, but he had progressed very far. The judge asked if there was any objection on the part of the state to the plea of nolo.

Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, said he did not object to the plea, but he considered it his duty to inform the court in regard to the recent actions of the doctor, and without any reference to the long past. Since the last day of November the doctor has been intoxicated a great many times, including several when he was down and out, absolutely helpless. Like a drunkard, he was arrested on the 5th of January, and was arraigned on the 6th on the charge of being a common drunkard. In that interim, said the chief, the doctor has been drunk nearly every day and down and out at least twice.

"That's not true," remarked the doctor. Judge Williams, speaking to the accused, said when arraigned as a common drunkard, January 6, the plea of not guilty was entered and the case set for trial on the 14th. On the 8th of January the doctor called on the court and stated that he had been offered a position in Boston and would go there if the court allowed. The doctor was told by the court that there was no basis for his apparent belief that the officers delighted in persecuting him, but on the contrary the officers had treated him leniently and deferred arrest until he made himself obnoxious to the public. The court told the doctor that the state of Rhode Island did not want his money or his body, but that he must reform or take the penalty. In order to give the doctor an opportunity to careen, Judge Williams said he would consider the plea of nolo and suspend sentence and continue the case for thirty days. The court sought to impress the doctor that if he became intoxicated again he would be arrested and sentenced upon the pending charge, a common drunkard, for which he might be sentenced for a term of three years.

President Ethan Wilcox, at the meeting of the Westerly Historical society, Tuesday evening, presided over the library development in Westerly. He traced the development from the Elder Libson library, the first in Westerly, to the present Westerly Memorial Library association, one of the most complete and substantial in New England.

These new members were elected: William Segar, Miss Mary C. Thomas, Aletta S. Rogers, Mary U. M. Gates, Hannah F. Dickens and Martha D. Segar. Representative Albert H. Langworthy, of Westerly, although a veteran legislator, is under the impression that Speaker Hamill cannot recall his name when he rises to make a motion to adjourn, as in the past few years in British Columbia he called the name of some other member of the house when Mr. Langworthy is seeking recognition. After Wednesday's adjournment, when Speaker Hamill forgot the name of the "gentleman from Westerly," he told Mr. Langworthy to be in his place when the time for adjournment arrived Thursday.

Mr. Langworthy was on his job, right on the dot, and when the speaker announced that his desk was clearing, Mr. Langworthy arose and addressed the chair. Speaker Hamill took a long look at "the gentleman from Narragansett," Mr. Kane. The latter moved for adjournment, but Mr. Langworthy did not second the motion and gracefully sat down.

Amos S. Burdick, the oldest member of the Grand Army of the Republic in Westerly, observed his ninetieth birthday at his home, No. 154 Main street, and received the congratulations of numerous friends. Up to a year ago he was remarkably active, but his sight has gradually failed and he is now almost blind. He served in the Civil war as sergeant of Company B, Ninth regiment, Rhode Island Volunteers. Mr. Burdick is a carpenter by occupation and at the age of 75, turned a handspike on the floor of a new house he had just completed. He has been married five times, and his wife assisted in the birthday observance.

William D. Cross, 84, cigar manufacturer died Friday morning at his home in Carolina, his native place and where he always resided. For a number of years he was treasurer of the town of Charlestown, represented the town as representative and senator in the general assembly and was a former commissioner of Indian schools for the Narragansett tribe. He was a member of Friendship lodge of Odd Fellows.

Mrs. Bridget Brown, 75, a native of Ireland, and for sixty years a resident of Westerly, died Thursday morning after two weeks' illness at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nicholas J. Dooley. Besides Mrs. Dooley, she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Esther Martley of Pawtucket, and a son, William J. Brown of Westerly.

William W. Leonard of Providence filed a suit in the superior court Friday against John M. Barber of Hopkinton for alleged malicious prosecution. The plaintiff alleged that Mr. Barber caused to be issued a warrant against him on an action of assault, basing the suit on a book account claim. Barber made an affidavit to the effect that the plaintiff, William W. Leonard, was about to leave the state without leaving property upon which an execution might be levied. Mr. Leonard says, and declared to the officer charged with the service of the writ, that he was in the present case was Wilbur W. Leonard.

William W. Leonard declares that he was arrested on the 14th of January, and that in order to regain his liberty he paid over to Jailer Charles A. Bennett, agent of John M. Barber, the sum of $125.00. Mr. Leonard was discharged from custody. The writ was not entered in court, Mr. Leonard says.

The plaintiff declares that he is not and never was indebted to John M. Barber as Barber claimed, and that he never has been known as Wilbur W. Leonard. He further alleged that Mr. Barber well knew that Wilbur W. Leonard died Jan. 16, 1914, and that Barber was guided by "wanton malice" in causing the arrest of the plaintiff.

The annual meeting of the Rhode Island Veterinary Medical association was held in Providence today. The following officers elected: President, Dr. E. J. Sullivan, Georgetown; first vice president, Dr. George L. Salisbury, Jr., Lafayette; second vice president, Dr. C. Horseman, Newport; secretary, Dr. Hugh S. Richards, treasurer, Dr. Thomas E. Robinson, Westerly.

BRITISH AUTHORITIES ACTED WITHIN RIGHTS When They Removed U. S. Private from American Steamer at Jamaica. Washington, Jan. 14.—Removal of Albert Clark, a private in the United States army, from the American steamer Santa Maria, was not expected to result in a protest from the state department. Officials said today that as the removal took place in British waters, the United States government was not expected to protest.

Clark was released after a brief examination, the British authorities apparently had acted within their rights. The principle of the nation's right to detain for examination any suspected alien in its territory or territorial waters has long been established in international law, and it is pointed out by officials that such removals have an entirely different status from those occurring on the high seas, and that the case of Clark was not parallel to that of the persons removed recently from American ships by the French cruiser Descartes, about which the United States protested to France.

Suspected persons frequently have been taken off American ships since the war began by British authorities at Hong Kong and in Canadian waters.

N. Y. REPUBLICANS TO HOLD UNOFFICIAL STATE CONVENTION

For the Purpose of Recommending Delegates to National Convention. New York, Jan. 14.—The republican state committee met here today and decided unanimously to hold an unofficial state convention in this city on Feb. 15 for the purpose of recommending four delegates and four alternates to the national convention at Chicago. Elihu Root was named as the committee's choice for president of the convention.

The session was harmonious until the issue of "preparedness" was introduced into the discussion. The resolution was introduced that the committee go on record as being in favor of any measure designed to prepare the United States against aggression on the part of any foreign foe. The resolution proposed that the committee recommend the national convention to give their hearty support to any measures which might be introduced increasing the military forces of the country. A motion that the resolution be referred to the committee on resolutions finally was carried. Several members said afterward they would force the question to an issue at the state convention when a platform is expected to be put forward.

The question of the election of delegates to the state convention was disposed of by providing that the delegates shall be appointed by the county committee, and that no more than one or more per cent of the republican voters in any assembly district choose to petition for a primary election, Jan. 17, 1916, a vote shall be taken on the time within which such petitions shall be presented.

No mention was made during the meeting of the possible delegates at large, but many of the committee-men said privately that United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., and Governor William G. B. Smith were the ones they desired. Elihu Root, it was said, could also be one of the "big four" if he desired. William Berri, Frederick C. Penner, chairman of the state committee, David Jayne Hill and Job F. Hedges were mentioned for fourth place.

One of the late arrivals at today's meeting was Douglas Robinson, Colonel Roosevelt's cousin and a former progressive. Mr. Robinson took his seat as member from Herkimer county.

At the close of the session Chairman Tanner announced a second unofficial state convention probably would be seeking to recover to take up the question of the governorship.

EMPEROR NICHOLAS NAILS SEPARATE PEACE RUMORS

There Will Be No Peace Without the Consent of the Allies. Petrograd, via London, Jan. 14, 7.43 P. M.—"Best news I saw today," said the beginning of the war, I will not make peace before we have forced the last of the enemy out of the limits of the empire. We will not make peace with the consent of our allies, to whom we are bound, not by paper, but by sincere friendship and ties of blood."

Emperor Nicholas, who addressed one of his armies on the Russian front during the week preceding the Russian Christmas, once more repelled the rumors of a separate peace in Russia, which from time to time have run throughout the country and even reached the men in the trenches.

The emperor, after visiting the armies on the southern front, reviewed the troops of General Evert, commander-in-chief of the forces in the west. The imperial train stopped at Zamarie on the Alexandrofsky railway. The emperor rode in an automobile, accompanied by General Evert, who was on a bay horse, the various companies shouting a salute in unison as they passed. All officers wearing the Cross of St. George, the emperor and his entourage rode in front of his troops. At that time the emperor and each officer separately, asked questions and generally interchanged views with the troops on the official welfare. The emperor then addressed the officers, saying:

I speak to you, most heroic representatives of our army, with a deeply and sincerely to thank you for your mighty valor and heroic efforts in the present campaign. I beg you to pass to your men my words, reminding them also for the heavy strain they manfully endured, which all Russia and I personally value."

Emperor Nicholas then gave his assurance as quoted above that he would not make a separate peace and afterwards again rode in front of his troops.

The emperor, at that time the enrollment was 153. The present enrollment is 504.

INCREASED JUVENILE CRIME IN GERMANY Some Reports Attribute It Directly to the War. Berlin, Jan. 14, via London, 7.30 p. m.—That war has increased juvenile crime in Germany was pointed out by Professor Franz von Liszt, of Berlin university, one of the most distinguished criminologists and professors of law in Germany, in an address before the national congress of the International Association of Criminologists, which was substituted by the same society, it was brought out by Professor Liszt recommends as a remedy, a decree just issued by the military governor of Cassel, forbidding boys to visit saloons or moving picture shows, or to loaf about the streets during the evening smoking and drinking alcoholic beverages.

The inquiry referred to by the speaker shows that the increase in crime is especially great among boys between the ages of 12 and 16, the older boys showing a greater measure of self-control.

WHAT TO DO FOR ITCHING SKINS

Eczema, ringworm and other itching, burning skin eruptions are so easily made worse by improper treatment, that one has to be very careful. There is one method, however, that you need not hesitate to use, even on a baby's tender skin—that is, the Resinol treatment. Resinol is the prescription of Dr. E. H. Ballmore doctor, put up in the form of Resinol ointment and Resinol soap. This proved so remarkably successful in the treatment of other physicians have prescribed it constantly for over twenty years.

Resinol usually stops itching instantly, healing the eruption quickly, unless it is due to some serious internal disorder. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap can be bought at any drugstore, and are not at all expensive. Write for free sample, Dept. 6-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

CHARGED WITH SHIPPING CONTRABAND TO GERMANY

Four Men and a Woman Indicted by Federal Grand Jury in New York.

New York, Jan. 14.—Four men and a woman were indicted today by federal grand jury on a charge of conspiring to violate the customs laws of the United States by shipping contraband rubber to Germany.

Those indicted were Edward Weber, a cousin of Albert Weber, an official of the Deutsches Bank in Berlin; Paul Schindler, a German agent in the Rubber and Guayule agency of this city; Max Jaeger, a German maker of automobile accessories; Mrs. Annie Dekkers, a native of Holland and Richard Wohlbeg, a naturalized citizen who operates a rubber and cement factory in New York. The Guayule agency also is made a defendant.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Harold Content, Mrs. Dekkers was to have been the go-between. Her sex and the fact that she had been in the habit of making frequent transatlantic trips were relied upon to protect her from suspicion. The rubber was to be carried by her as persons baggage and in that way would not have to appear on the ship's manifest.

TO REMODEL CHAPEL AT WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

President Shanks Announces Gift Which Will Make It Possible. Middletown, Conn., Jan. 14.—The announcement of a gift through which it will be possible to remodel the present memorial chapel at Wesleyan university was made by President William Arnold Shanks, tonight.

The proposed changes, which will enlarge the chapel and put a spacious gallery around the other three sides of the auditorium and install a pipe organ will cost about $50,000. The chapel has been overcrowded by the rapid increase in the student body the past six years. The present chapel, which cost $60,000, was built in 1871 by a large number of contributions as a memorial to the students killed in the Civil war. At that time the enrollment was 153. The present enrollment is 504.

The gift just announced and of which President Shanks spoke to night at the annual banquet of the Wesleyan university alumni club of New York city, comes from an anonymous friend.
